

VIRTUAL INTELLIGENCE PROVIDERS, LLC

VIP Translation & Documentation Services

Although it may read or sound as a truism, the fact stands that not all documentation or translation projects are the same

At VIP we count on the expert and reliable help of documentation & translation consultants who go beyond linguistic, computing and organizational skills. They understand the mechanics of a given language, just as well as the information technologies used to describe, organize and display field or industry specific processes, procedures, ideas and complex concepts.

What is more important, they will be able to devise and apply specific collaboration approaches suited to the unique and very specific nature of your organization's undertaking. Their emphasis will be on working closely with your subject-matter experts, and with the technical and referential resources made available to them, since these will determine the success of your project.

We are ready and glad to provide you additional information and, if required, help you evaluate along with your experts the nature, scope, objectives and expectations of a documentation/translation project.

Customer Service

Our representatives are eager to assist you in obtaining additional information about our service, and the business advantages and possibilities they create. We welcome your inquiries as they give us the opportunity to know about you and your organization.

Also, with your approval, we may want to meet with your subject-matter experts, or any other stake holder, for the purpose of further assessing your current needs, expectations, and challenges where we can be of help.

Remember,
our philosophy is simple:

We contribute the best of our expertise, talent and resources to help make your organization even more successful, for your success is our best credentials.
